

SNAP To it Spotlight The Raging Olive

If you're a fan of the Shawarma, the Falafel, the Shashlik and you haven't tried them at The Raging Olive, 3537 Fairview Street, then you need to stop reading this and go there...now. If you need more a little more persuasion, then read on. I never thought I would enjoy Mediterranean food as much as I do now since trying it at The Raging Olive. I now crave their hummus regularly and have put their falafel on my list of top 5 favourite foods. Since the first time I ate there, the food has been consistently fresh and delicious.

Now I'm sure Chef Nelson is shaking his head thinking, "alright Alanna, we get it, you love the hummus!", so I'll tell you about the other great dishes you will want to taste.

I typically skip appetizers but not at The Raging Olive! With so many to choose from, all sound and look tempting, I would suggest the Baba Ganosh ($5.99), finely ground barbecued eggplant with creamed tahini, garlic and lemon juice with a touch of olive oil. Definitely try the Falafel Plate ($8.50) with deep fried chickpeas with parsley, seasonings on a bed of mixed salad. Since you're going to want to try all of the appetizers and dips, or at least have a hard time choosing just one, try the Assorted Maza where you can choose four!

The Butter Chicken has been a huge success, proving that The Raging Olive is "more than just Mediterranean". If you stop in for lunch or a lighter dinner, try a Pita Bread Sandwich with chicken, lamb, steak or pork. For the entire experience, choose a Specialty Entree of Chicken, Chicken Shawarma, Lamb or Pork Shashlik, or Kafta, which is accompanied by a mixed salad and your choice of french fries, home fries or rice. The Souvlaki is also available in lamb, chicken or pork. All Specialty Entrees and Souvlaki dishes are also available in regular and large sizes. There are many vegetarian options also available and dietary restrictions can be accommodated since everything on the menu is made-to-order.

You are going to love your dining experience at The Raging Olive so much that you will wish there was a way to have everyone you know experience it too. That's why I have brought The Raging Olive to almost every party I have both hosted and attended. With their catering, you can enjoy made-to-order fresh Mediterranean food for your next event.
